The National Battlefields Commission Guide/historical impersonator

The National Battlefields Park is one of the world's most prestigious urban parks and the first national historical park in Canada. More than 30 activities are organized for groups (mostly school groups) which represent a yearly turnout of 55,000 people coming from Quebec, Ontario and the United States. Most of our activities require the wearing of period costumes (role-playing). They are provided in English and French on the very site of the famous battles (1759-60) or inside historical buildings (Martello Towers). Our profusely decorated activity rooms are furnished with reproductions and accessories that make the experience particularly enthralling and interactive for the visitor.

- Combine your passion for history with your acting talent and share your knowledge;
- Work with a team of experimented guides and receive one of the best training in the business;
- By joining us, you will get a part-time job during your school sessions and have a guaranteed place among our team for the next years coming.
